

INVITATION

Ballistic missile and area air defence in an American, German and Danish perspective

The Danish Atlantic Treaty Association and the Royal Danish Defence College present the first part of our seminars with a focus on ballistic missile defence and area air defence.

We have chosen to focus on the technical part in this first part - what new technologies are under development, how are ballistic missile and area air defence integrated, and what possibilities and challenges can be identified in an American, German and Danish context?

To answer the above questions, we have invited the following representatives:

- Peter R. Sønderkjøge-Hansen, commander and military analyst at The Royal Danish Defence College.
- Pat McNelis, Lieutenant Colonel in the U.S. Air Force
- Klaus Bohnenstengel, commander and subject matter expert at the German Navy Headquarters

The discussion will be moderated by general secretary, Lars Bangert Struwe.

The seminar is organised in cooperation between The Danish Atlantic Treaty Association and The Royal Danish Defence College with assistance from the US Embassy in Copenhagen and Raytheon Missile Systems.

Time: February 22, 15.00-17.00

Place: Svanemøllens Kaserne, Ryvangs Allé 1, building 75

The event will be in English.

Sign up before February 20 on tilmelding@atlant.dk
